MENTAL RETARDATION HOSPITAL IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM

1969

This issue of "Programs for the Handicapped" reviews the Hospital Improvement Program (HIP). A listing of projects active as of June 30, 1969 is shown on pages 3-18.

This program is administered by the Rehabilitation Services Administration directed at improving and upgrading residential care for the mentally retarded.

For additional information on this program contact the Division of Mental Retardation, Rehabilitation Services Administration, Social and Rehabilitation Service, U. S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington, D. C. 20201. For details regarding a specific HIP project please contact the institution directly.

Problems of Public Institutions for the Mentally Retarded

Public institutions for the mentally retarded are often isolated from the larger community, geographically and otherwise. This results in barriers to adequate staffing, communication, understanding, and acceptance by the community.

Fiscal resources are often restricted, which hampers the employment of adequate and properly trained personnel to staff the institution. Low salaries for direct-care personnel result in frequent staff turnover.

Huge institutional populations, housed in large, antiquated and understaffed buildings, have made it difficult to develop better methods of training and habilitation. 1/retarded is a tough and tangled one. The essence of the problem is what to do about buildings, budgets, programs and populations that have existed in neglect and decay for many years with little or no thought being given to their needs by either State officials or the public..." 2/

Out of this dilemma came the HIP legislation to initiate assistance to State institutions in order to improve the plight of the mentally retarded residing in them.

The HIP Program

The Mental Retardation Hospital Improvement Program is a direct grant program specifically designed to stimulate improved services to the mentally retarded in State institutions by demonstrating innovative techniques which can be replicated in that institution or in others.

All State institutions for the mentally retarded are eligible to apply for the maximum of $100,000 per year for an accumulated total of ten years. Applications are submitted to two non-governmental review committees for judgments as to their relative quality, based on the appropriateness of the objectives of the project, innovativeness of the institution, appropriateness of the listed personnel, integration with the total institutional program, estimated cost, priority program need for that institution, and the plan for evaluation of the project.

These projects are not meant to meet all of the unmet needs of a given institution, but to concentrate on one high priority program area at a time, in order to establish an effective approach to that problem. An institution may have several HIP grants running concurrently so long as they total less than the maximum level ($100,000 per year). It is expected that successful demonstrations in an institution will be further implemented by State monies so that other demonstrations can be devised.

The foci of grant activities vary greatly, based on the needs of the institution. The variety of areas served through the grants can best be observed as one reads through the purpose of each HIP grant as they are listed on the following pages.

In the past five years HIP funds totaling $27 million have been utilized by 110 of the 175 eligible State institutions for initiating innovative program services.
